VICTIM REPARATIONS IN THE INTER-AMERICAN HUMAN RIGHTS SYSTEM: A CRITICAL ASSESSMENT OF CURRENT PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE

Jo M. Pasqualucci*

INTRODUCTION .......................................................... 2

I. INTER-AMERICAN COURT'S AUTHORITY FOR VICTIM REPARATIONS ........................................... 8

II. INTER-AMERICAN COURT PROCEDURES IN DETERMINING REPARATIONS ..................................... 13

III. PERSONS WHO MAY BE AWARDED REPARATIONS BY THE INTER-AMERICAN COURT ........................................ 16

A. The Direct Victim .................................................. 16
B. The Beneficiaries of the Direct Victim ......................... 17
C. The Indirect Victim ............................................... 19
D. No Reparations for Victims Who Are Unable to Gain Access to the Court: A Need for Reform .......... 23

IV. TYPES OF REPARATIONS .............................................. 23

A. Full Restitution ................................................... 25
B. Compensatory or Actual Damages ............................... 26
   1. Loss of Earnings ............................................ 26
   2. Other Compensation Awarded ............................... 29
   3. Compensation for Property Rights ......................... 30
   4. Minimal Compensation for an Inferred Violation .......... 30
   5. Ex Gratia Compensation ..................................... 31
C. Nonpecuniary or Moral Damages ............................... 32
   1. The Basis for Determining Moral Damages .................. 34
   2. Proof of Moral Injury ...................................... 36
D. Rehabilitation .................................................... 37
E. Satisfaction .......................................................... 38
   1. Forms of Satisfaction Ordered by the Inter-American Court ............................................. 38

* Associate Professor of Law, University of South Dakota School of Law; B.A., University of Wisconsin (1971); M.S., University of Wisconsin (1976); J.D., University of Wisconsin (1986). The author wishes to thank Attorney William Cartwright of the Inter-American Court of Human Rights and Professor Michelle Arnopol Cecil of the University of Missouri-Columbia, School of Law for their ongoing encouragement and support. All views expressed in this article are solely those of the author.
2. Possible Limits on the Court’s Authority to Order Satisfaction ........................................... 40
3. Apology as Satisfaction ........................................................................................................... 42
   F. No Punitive Damages .......................................................................................................................... 42
   G. Expenses, Costs, and Attorneys’ Fees ................................................................................................. 44
V. DISTRIBUTION OF DAMAGE AWARDS TO BENEFICIARIES
   WHEN THE VICTIM IS DECEASED ......................................................................................................... 48
VI. METHOD OF PAYMENT .......................................................................................................................... 51
VII. STRUCTURE OF THE PHASES OF THE COURT’S PROCEEDINGS .......................................................... 53
VIII. THE EXECUTION OF JUDGMENTS ON REPARATIONS .................................................................... 55
CONCLUSION ................................................................................................................................................. 57

INTRODUCTION